

Sandalford Wines chief executive Grant Brinklow is delighted that the winery was named best Tourism Winery in WA for 2008.

Picture: Matthew Poon

www.communitypix.com.au d297492

Sandalford named the best

SANDALFORD Wines was recently recognised for its commitment to tourism at the Western Australian Tourism Awards.

As well as taking out the top prize for best Tourism Winery in Western Australia for 2008, the winery was also placed second in the Tourism Attractions and Tourism Restaurant and Catering Services categories.

Sandalford Wines chief executive officer Grant Brinklow said the awards represented another outstanding achievement for Sandalford in what had been a terrific year for awards across all aspects of operations.

"This is a very exciting time for our business," he said.

"We are winning great accolades for our wines, cellar door facility, restaurant and our tourism efforts.

"We're a fine wine company, first and foremost, but we also offer a fine wine experience."

Over 850 guests attended the awards and gala dinner, held at Burswood on November 29 and presented by Ernie Dingo and Monica Kos.

Chief executive officer of Tourism Council WA Graham Moss and the chairman of judges said this year's awards drew a record number of submissions.

"As chair of judges I was able to view the submissions first hand and they were outstanding," he said.

"The awards are testimony to the outstanding quality of tourism facilities, services and operators in Western Australia."